Reno Behavioral Healthcare Hospital offers Psychiatric Residential Treatment for adolescents age 12-17 in a modern, clean, safe and therapeutic environment.

Residential treatment provides intensive care for youth with serious psychiatric, emotional and/or behavioral problems and is sometimes the next step for youth in need of further treatment following inpatient psychiatric care.

Youth stay in the residential program for a short duration, usually one-to-three months or sometimes longer depending on the needs of the individual, where they can continue treatment in a structured, safe and caring environment by trained staff.

The Reno Behavioral Healthcare Hospital Difference
